

Where Art Thou Show Opening is a wonderful success

When the gallery becomes too crowded and warm Tina and guests move outdoors on a beautiful day for an opening.

Jenny Fisher is a great bartender and everyone comes to see her.

Behind many successful women is a supportive husband. Carl Karvonen plays that role for Tina.

Beautiful day

Guests appreciate Tina's art and good conversation. The food was plentiful and delicious.

Tina Atterbury Karvonen presents a year of oil paintings

Harbor Art Guild presented oil paintings by Tina Atterbury Karvonen in a solo show titled "Where Art Thou?" October 14 to November 13, 2016, at Six Rivers Gallery.

The opening reception was held Sunday, October 23, 1 – 4 p.m. This was an opportunity to meet the artist and hear about the production of her show, as well as enjoy refreshments. HAG members joined Tina in bringing their best finger food for this reception. She sent out many invitations and as a result enjoyed a large crowd of fans.

Tina worked on the art for this show for over a year since oil paints take a long time to dry. Most of the canvasses are large and feature landscapes recognizable from Washington scenery.

Also well known for her intricately designed and dyed Pysanky Eggs, she has painted in oils for about 15 years. She also works in oil pastels and mixed media.

Connie Newton teaches origami ornament class

Donna Miller and Barb Shillinger are totally engrossed in the production of the origami ornaments.

Rae Ann and Britta are having fun putting ornaments together.

Connie Newton loves to teach art techniques and does a great job bringing joy to others through her classes. She prepared several design sheets for students to choose and then cut, fold and paste together for beautiful results. Connie sold her creations at the Westport Holiday

Craft Bazaar, November 12.
