Doug Orr creates Walk in the Park mural on bridge ramp

Hidden at the end of South I Street is this delightful mural by Doug Orr. It is across the street from Marshall's Garden & Pet Store and was sponsored by several individuals when the original funding for the mural became unavailable.

Walk in the Park has turned a drab bridge ramp into a lovely scene that invites the viewer to join the lady and her dog on a pleasant walk.

Writer seeks graphic designer for cover art

I've always felt that the measure of a society is how it takes care of those who can't help themselves. Hence, I've always been a giver – seeing a need and responding to it. Maybe that's why I've collected so much art. I know firsthand how difficult it is to support one's self as an artist (or writer, in my case) and have helped many artist friends who were equally generous to me.

Since I wasn't able to support myself as an herbalist either, I wrote newspaper columns for many years in trade for ads to promote my business, Roseworks Botanicals.

I'd like to publish the best of those columns now, as well as a children's book. I've got text and art but need someone with time to commit, and graphic skills to lay out stellar covers and front pages. Yes, I can pay you. Thanks!

Gallery Schedule is now on Google Calendar

Sandy Early and Heidi Davis have set up a Google Calendar to be used as a space for listing our gallery attendants dates of service.

Each person needs to get logged into HAG's Google Calendar by using the email 6rivershag@gmail.com and the password (in the desk drawer).

Sandy will log each person into the calendar. Members will be able to access this through Google Calendar on their smartphone or desktop computer.

When members are looking for an open date for sitting at the gallery, they can now check Google Calendar on their phone or computer.

New face at Alder Grove

Say hi to Nima, the new pup at Alder Grove Gallery.
