

HAG members and guests paint rocks at the August meeting.

Tiny flowers adorn a small rock.

Nancy takes a break from rock painting to admire the work of others.

Grays Harbor Rocks has made it a fun summer for painters, hiders and finders of painted rocks.

Zyra, the youngest rock painter, enjoys being an artist.

Heart-shaped rocks are enhanced by heart shapes.

Tina's style and themes work on rocks too.

Rock painting becomes the most important occupation of the moment.

Two new-comers enjoy the art of painted rocks.

Autumnal Frenzy opening draws a small but friendly crowd

John and Barb entertain Bunny while Donna and Tina share ideas at the opening.

Gary and his son talk with Jenny about their latest art projects.

Wine and Art Wednesdays come to Six Rivers Gallery

Connie Newton has proposed an art activity that will help put Six Rivers Gallery on the map. This is a project she has had going at a pub in the South Beach area.

Connie will teach the first couple of classes. She encourages others to teach a “make it and take it” art activity that can be completed in a couple of hours. There will be a charge for the classes to cover materials and fees for the teacher and HAG.

There will be one or two sessions per month and Connie will coordinate the program. Stay tuned for more information on this on Facebook and our website.

Get involved with Harbor Art Guild

For Harbor Art Guild to be a viable organization, we need more participation from our members. HAG is now eight years old and some of our original members are looking for others to begin taking on more roles.

Danni Rodewald has been doing a terrific job keeping the gallery staffed. When no one was available Danni staffed the gallery herself rather than let it be closed. Danni would like a break as scheduler.

Please let John or Danni know if you can fill that role. You will certainly get more acquainted with other HAG members and who knows where that might lead.
